KINGSFORD.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Mr. Cephas Simpson, of Long Island, New York, is visiting his relatives here and in Newburg after an absence of five years.

Mr. Burrows, public school inspector for Lennox, visited our school last week. The school we learn is making steady progress
under Miss Deane's able supervision.

Mr. Scott, editor of the Napanee Herald and superintendent of the telephone, was visiting here last week looking after the interests of the Herald and the Telephone.

We have had telephone communication in our village for some years, but we are glad to learn that Kingsford is likely soon to have telephone communication with the outside world.

A handsome woven wire fence is about to be erected around the church lot by the congregation of St. Patrick's Church. Mr. James McKittick, of Selby, has obtained the contract. The interior of the church is also to be improved. The ceiling will be newly plastered and the ceiling and walls kalsomined.

St. Jude's Church (Church of England) is to be painted and varnished and the walls kalsomined. The work will be done by Mr.
James McKittick, of Selby.

We regret to hear of the serious illness of Mr. John C. Hanley, of Read, ex-Warden of Hastings.

Mr. Norman Whiteman formerly of Lonsdale, is about opening a blacksmith business in the shop adjoining the mill property on the north side of the river.

Mr. John McCullough, who is about moving to Belleville, has rented his farm on the 3rd concession to Mr. Oliver Kruse.

The many warm friends of Miss Eva Roblin were glad to see in the columns of THE TRIBUNE last week that the Deseronto people fully appreciated the musical treat afforded by this talented and accomplished artist.

The community were startled by the announcement of the sudden death of Mr.
James Williams, of the 5th con., Tyndinaga, on Sunday morning last. It appears the old gentleman had been walking about his place that morning before breakfast and coming into the house enquired if breakfast was ready when he suddenly fell over and instantly expired. He was one of the oldest and most respected residents in Tyndinaga and was well known through this section. He was a hale and hearty old man and was in his 79th year.

Mr. Thomas Mangan has been buying a number of cattle in this neighborhood for shipment to Montreal.

Mr. Francis Brennan is very low, all hope of his recovery having long since been abandoned.

MARYSVILLE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Miss Hensley has returned to her home at Bowmanville.

Mrs. Gauthier, of Tweed, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Cus, Scanlon.

Mrs. Sweeney, of Napanee, who has been spending the summer at New York, paid a visit to old friends here recently.

Mr. Joe Farrell and wife have returned from Trenton to reside here permanently.

Mrs. John Noble and children, of Merriam Park, Minn., are visiting at the home of B. I.
Allison, Esq.

Mr. Hicks, a C. P. R. conductor, of Fort Gratier, Mich., and formerly a Napanee boy, is, with his wife, renewing acquaintances in this section.

Mr. Frank Burr and wife, of Pawlings, Conn., are visiting at the home of B. I.
Allison, Esq.

LONSDALE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Mr. Norman Whiteman, of our village, has made arrangements to move to Kingsford in a few days to commence his business as a general blacksmith.

Mr. Patrick McGinniss has also started a shop at Melrose in the same business.

We hear of a sad accident which occurred on Sunday last north of here by the running away of Mr. M. Hart's team, upsetting the carriage and seriously injuring Mrs. McDermott and her child, who could not be taken home and were left at Mr. Hart's. The child died on the following Wednesday; it is thought
Mrs. McDermott will recover.

On Sunday morning one of the old residents, Mr. James Williams, of the 5th con. of Tyndinaga, was very suddenly taken from among us by the hand of death. He was in Lonsdale on Saturday, on business in good health and on Sunday morning got up as usual and attended to his cows, &c., then returned to the house, sat down to breakfast, straightened back in his chair and expired without a word or a struggle.

Mr. Hamilton, one of Deseronto's merchants, has commenced sending large loads of goods to Lonsdale where he expected to open out his stock in Mrs. Doxice's store and be ready for business in a few days.

TYNDINAGA RESERVE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

The Mohawk Council have been asked to remove the Carter slaughter house, the offensive odors from which on Sunday have been offered as an excuse for non attendance at church.

Sandy Culbertson is running a seint on the old ground opposite the church; he expects a good season.

We are all delighted to welcome back Amos McEach. He returns to his old position in the Big Store of the Rathbun Company on Monday.

A Grand River Indian, Seth Newhouse, alias "Approaching Fire," alias "Blue Blazes," is still here attempting to poison the minds of our people. His antecedents are pretty well known; he had better go home. Our most respectable Mohawks are ashamed of him.

The hickory nut industry is in full blast.
Barley is coming in freely the farmers being convinced that it will not pay to hold on.

The visit of the Rev. R. Ashton, of the Mohawk Institute, Brantford, and Mr. Venning, Secretary of the New England Co. in England, to the Mission School and their remarks upon the proficiency of the children and the general progress of our people are encouraging and incentives to greater efforts.

CRIMINAL NEGLIGENCE.

What might have proved a very serious accident occurred at an early hour last Friday morning. The Citizens' Band having fulfilled an engagement at the Belleville fair on Thursday were returning home to Deseronto in one of Thomas Gault's rigs. They were driving along in the darkness when suddenly the whole party, with one solitary exception, were hurled from their seats and with their valuable instruments, found themselves struggling in a confused mass in a deep ditch. It appears that the county officials had been repairing the culvert at the foot of the hill near James Maracle's. A deep excavation had been made and the criminal in the extreme the workmen when night came departed leaving the work unfinished but without a lantern or anything else to warn the traveller of his danger. The night being dark the band had driven into the big ditch thus excavated; the horses were thrown down to one side and seriously injured, while the rig also was much damaged. Several of the members of the band, and more especially Mr. C. Macdonald, sustained severe bruises and other injuries,
instruments were smashed, and it was little short of a miracle that some of the men were not killed. The members of the band aroused Mr. Maracle to see the real condition of things and also came to town and got several casks to go out and see the dangerous state in which the road had been left.
Mr. C. Macdonald, who was severely shaken up and whose valuable musical instrument was broken, has instructed his solicitor in Belleville to proceed against the county officials for damages, and, no doubt, the other members of the Citizens' Band, and Mr. Gault will take similar action. The council will be mulcted in a nice sum for damages in connection with this affair. It seems that Messrs. Lenderoth, O'Connor and H. B. Rathbun came within an ace of finding themselves in the same predicament as the band but escaped by the sagacity of their horses.

SOLMESVILLE.

From An Occasional Correspondent.

Threshing has been occupying the attention of the farmers in this vicinity for the past ten days, as Mr. Spencer, the renowned thresher, has been through here with his steam thresher. He kept up his previous record by threshing one day last week for Mr. Wm. Jamieson one thousand bushels of oats at the rate of two bushels a minute. He said he can beat that we would like to hear from them.

Mrs. David Mitchell, of Missoula, Montana, and Mrs. Gilbert, of Belleville, were the guests of Mrs. James Crook last Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. Barber and her mother, of Shamoon-ville, are visiting on this side of the Bay.

Wm. D. Hall paid this vicinity a flying visit on his way to Cobourg.

Mr. A. W. Crook started on Wednesday, and int., for Montana where he intends to make his future home.

Mrs. Maggie Simpson, we are pleased to state, is recovering from a severe attack of typhoid fever.

Those who have tried it, claim that the best and cheapest way to rid a garden or field of the purslane pest is to seed the land with clover and grass. These will soon choke out the purslane and after a few years
the ground may be again broken up and be as clean as when new.

METHODIST SABBATH SCHOOL.

Last Lord's day was devoted to the review of the lessons of the past quarter in the deseronto Sabbath schools of the town. The exercises in the Methodist Sabbath School were on an elaborate scale and of a very interesting character. The work had been assigned to the lady teachers and they formed their task admirably. There was a splendid attendance, teachers and pupils to the number of 340 being present upon the occasion. Mrs. A. Campbell, of the Parsonage, presided in the capacity of temporary superintendent of the school. The programme opened with the hymn "Praise Him, Not O Gentle Saviour" sung by the whole school, after which Mrs. Campbell led in a prayer of great spiritual fervor. A number of scriptural quotations were then given and the school again united in singing "Work for Night is Coming." Mrs. Campbell after some introductory remarks then proceeded to a review of the first two lessons of the quarter. The other ladies who took part in the review were Mrs. E. Richardson, Miss Porter, Mrs. Baldwin, Mrs. H. H. Haight, and Miss Scott. Mrs. B. W. Washburn gave some object lessons to the infant classes by means of a blackboard containing some elaborate drawings which conveyed the meaning of the lessons. The ladies grasped and important lessons. All the ladies performed their parts admirably and it was evident that careful study and analysis of the different lessons had characterized the work of the school during the previous quarter. The review exercises were varied by musical pieces given by the girls' classes and readings of appropriate selections by Mrs. T. C. Fraser and Mrs. R.
E. Northmore. At the close of the Review Miss Warrantman submitted the regular quarterly report which showed that during the term 3,964 verses had been learned and $37.31 collected, an excellent showing when it is remembered that the past quarter embraced the vacation season when so many teachers and pupils of the school are away from home. During the past three quarters the average report was as follows:—1st, 7,592; 2nd, 6,470; 3rd, 3,964; total 17,996.
The collections during the same period were:
1st, $40.84; 2nd, $41.65; 3rd, $37.31; total $119.80. To this amount must be added proceeds of entertainment in the spring $28.00 and excursion $38.95, making a grand total of receipts thus far of $187.05, figures which speak more eloquently than words.
Although the exercises were continued
rather too long, the interest was sustained throughout. The exercises from beginning to end were conducted by the ladies, and pastor and regular superintendent being relieved to a back seat for the time being.
Miss Campbell fulfilled the duties of organist and a young lady was organ blower; ladies acted as ushers and ladies took up the collections. The pulpit platform was handsomely decorated with foliage plants and choice flowers. We cannot close our report without complimenting Mrs. Campbell and her staff on the success of the review exercises, and extending our congratulations to Rev. A. Campbell, pastor of the church, and Mr. A. A. Richardson, Superintendent of the school, on being supported by such a zealous corps of efficient teachers.

Pruning.

If orchard trees have been properly cared for from the first, there will be but little pruning needed, and it matters not much at what time it is done. Grapes, currants and gooseberries may be pruned soon after the leaves have fallen. Blackberries and raspberries should be pruned by cutting out the old canes as soon as the fruit is gathered.

FARM, FIELD AND GARDEN.

DEVOTED TO AGRICULTURE IN ITS VARIOUS BRANCHES.

Home Mixed Fertilizers—The Advantages Claimed for Home Mixing—The Unfitness of Ready-Made Mixtures for Those Not Willing to Handle the Raw Materials.

At the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station an analysis has been made of all the examples of home mixed fertilizers sent to the station this year. A bulletin recently received gives the analyses, with such facts as could be gained regarding their cost, etc. The average cost of materials for the fertilizers referred to in this bulletin is $38.75 per ton delivered at the purchaser's freight station. Two dollars will fully cover the cost of screening and mixing, this figure being more than the estimate of those who have been in the habit of purchasing ready-made fertilizers. At the highest estimate, therefore, the average cost of these home mixed fertilizers has been $38.75 per ton. The average value obtained from the station's analysis has been $38.82 per ton. It is the value of the fertilizers, not the cost of the chemicals mixed.

The advantages claimed for home mixing, in this bulletin, are: 1. Each ingredient can be separately examined by the purchaser, and, if necessary, sent to the experiment station for analysis. The detection of inferior forms of nitrogen or phosphoric acid is easier and more certain in a single article than in a mixture. 2. An intelligent farmer who knows his soil is better able than any one else can be to adapt the composition of his fertilizers to the special requirements of his land as well as of his crop. 3. It is claimed that the cost of home mixing is better than any one else can be to adapt the composition of his fertilizers to the special requirements of his land as well as of his crop. 3. It is claimed that the cost of home mixing is better than any one else can be to adapt the composition of his fertilizers to the special requirements of his land as well as of his crop.

It will be seen from the foregoing that at the Connecticut station the expediency of home mixing, in many cases, is believed in. There is no question that mixtures of raw materials can be and are annually made on the farm, and that they are uniform in quality, fine and dry, and equal to the ready-made fertilizers. The economy of home mixing depends, of course, on the prices which the sellers of mixed goods are willing to take and on the cost of fertilizing chemicals delivered as near the farm as the mixed goods can be bought. Each individual farmer, concludes the bulletin, ought to be the best judge of the economy of home mixing in his particular case, as well as the formulas which are best adapted to his soil and crops.

The report quoted from is certainly correct in the statement that intelligent farmers who understand the requirements of their own soils and crops can, in many instances, save money by mixing at home the crude materials. But, on the other hand, there are a large number of farmers who do not know that their land requires, and who cannot or will not spend the money in experimenting to find out. For this class the ready-made mixtures, especially the "complete" and "special" fertilizers bearing trustworthy brands, are the safest investment. The ready-made mixtures also meet the requirements of those who are not willing to give the necessary time and labor to the handling and mixing of the raw materials.

Utility of Sheep on the Farm.
Some one is trying to dispel the pleasant faith people have long enjoyed in regard to sheep improving a pasture or farm. The statement that sheep must eat the same as other stock and that the substance which goes to make up the waste and carcass is lost to the soil is true and evident, but there are many points of dissimilarity between sheep and cattle in their feeding and effect upon a pasture. With a small daily ration of grain, sheep will thrive in a bushy pasture where there is very little of other stock would eat, and will kill out the weeds and bushes at the same time; and if they do not really enrich the soil on the whole, they will enrich the poorest spots if it will be worth the value of the pasture by the value of the land it would take to kill out the weeds and bushes and cover the surface with fine grasses. We have seen a field which had been used as a pasture for colts and calves till one-third of it was covered with golden rod and blackberry vines changed to a fine grassy meadow in three years by putting in a few more sheep than the colts and calves in condition, and giving them extra food to make up the deficiency. And we know that there are thousands of acres of rough pasture in New England growing up to bushes, where the rocks are too thick to allow cutting the bushes or plowing the land, that might be made into good annual pastures in the same way.

The Annual Rings of a Tree.
In a recent work by Professor Hartig it is stated that a count of the annual rings of a tree when cut three or four feet from the ground may not give the accurate age of the tree. When trees are crowded in a forest and have developed feeble crowns the greatest annual increment is just below the crown, and it diminishes regularly downwards. When the tree is open and sufficient to afford food material to provide for a wide expanse of crown, the growth is more rapid, and the annual rings are more widely spaced. In such trees the rings are found twenty feet up the trunk may fall altogether before the crown reaches the ground. In such trees there may be rings lacking at three feet high for certain years, and the total number of rings would be less than the number of years in the tree's life.

Aspenberry Plants.
In requires only a few red raspberry plants to afford a large crop of fruit, and the plants quickly become very numerous. The wood of the old canes is cut out during the winter and the new, large, well-developed canes are left to mature another year, and a year gives them an application of wood which.

AMONG THE BEES.

The Workers Which Dominate the Hive.

The Queen and the Drones.
In the New England states the races of bees kept are Italian, black and hybrid. The middle states generally have Italian, black and their crosses. Farmers in the south, who have only a few hives, keep generally the common black bees, but advanced beekeepers have Italian and their crosses almost entirely. Throughout the whole country the Italians are the favorite race, and the blacks and natives are being replaced by imported bees.

As persons in general have rather imperfect ideas of what constitutes a colony of bees, a few facts in regard to them, gathered from different sources, may prove interesting. A colony of bees consists of a queen, several thousands of workers and, during a part of the year, a few hundred drones. The queen is the mother of the whole colony, and, while she is the only one who lays eggs, she is really more of a reproductive machine than a monarch. Her great function is that of maternity. The workers gather the honey, construct the comb, secrete the wax and provide food for the young. In short, perform the entire work of the colony. The queen and the workers are provided with stings, while the drones are not. In shape the queen resembles the workers, but the wings are smaller, and she has a more rounded abdomen. The drones are the males; their bodies are large and clumsy, and their buzzing, when on the wing, is loud and different from that of the workers. The drones are only valuable from the fact that they are males, and are thus necessary in the process of reproduction of the race. A drone and the queen are the parents of the entire colony, including virgin queens, workers and drones. The workers are all females, undeveloped, and rarely laying eggs, but are nevertheless good nurses for the brood of the queen mother.

Practically the workers dominate the hive. As stated by Mr. N. W. McLain in a report to Dr. Riley, United States entomologist, continued observation and experiments furnish corroborative evidence of the theory that it is the prerogative of the worker bees to determine the degree of development and the functions of the drones, as they determine the kind of degree of instinct and organization, and dominate the functions of the queen. The volition of the queen determines the sex of every one of her descendants, but the kind of every individual, as well as the modifications in organization and instinct, depends upon and receives its correction from the worker bees, whose unerring presence forbids the rearing or maintaining of individuals whose services there exists no present or prospective demand. As the queen must be continually supplied with eggs food before the egg cells begin to germinate and mature in the ovaries, so the drone must be well supplied with food. The food suited to him, the giving and withholding of which is instinctively determined by the worker bees, as the present and prospective condition of the colony requires.

Temperature for Churning.
The temperature at which cream should be churned varies according to the temperature of the air, but the proper number of degrees is about sixty. In older times, and even in modern days, the rule for churning was to let the cream stand in the tub until butter had formed in great lumps. That was a great fallacy. A point is reached in churning beyond which any further churning brings no improvement, and that point is when the butter has formed in small lumps. The churning should take from twenty-five to thirty-five minutes if it was much less the butter would not be in good condition; if the churning took longer it would be spoiled. As to whether butter should be washed or not the practice varied in different countries, and in different parts of England, and is a matter entirely of taste. Those who are accustomed to unwashed butter certainly will not like the flavor of washed butter.

Oats the Best Balanced of Grains.
Oats are the best balanced of all grains, containing on the average about 12 per cent. of flesh formers, 65 per cent. of fat and warmth giving constituents, and 3 per cent. of cereals. A notable feature of oats in comparison with other food crops is the large percentage of husk or fiber that they contain—namely, about 10 per cent. of the whole. When chopped or fed whole, oats are rich in fat and warmth formers, and it contains but little husk. It is, however, too expensive to feed as a rule, but it makes an excellent food for chickens, and also for fattening purposes. Oatmeal consists of 15 per cent. of flesh formers, 75 per cent. of fat and warmth giving properties, and 2 per cent. of bone making substances.

Things That Are Told.
Only rich farmers can afford to own an old wind penetrating and manure leaching stable, according to The Country Gentleman. Four men must have good stable hands.

Southern Planter says that German clover sown in August or September will do well either alone or with rye for early cutting in the spring; it will come to maturity from a fortnight to three weeks earlier than red clover, is much relieved by stock and makes excellent hay.

Ducks are mentioned by The Poultry Journal as industrious destroyers of insect grubs, being especially fond of the grubs of "daddy long legs." Ducks will dig for these and do much toward freeing the soil of these pests.

An English authority claims that Devon and Dorset Flocks and the Sussex breeds are among those which produce the best quality of meat suited to modern requirements. Herefords and Shorthorns are, perhaps, the quickest growers and gainers, and second to none for crossing with other breeds for grunting purposes, but he thinks that Red Polls and Shorthorns are the best all round animals.

WOMAN'S DRESS.

Vandyke and sandal are new dress shades.

The shades of gray now worn are absolutely lovely.

All the new browns have more gold than red in them.

"Or rouge" is the name of a new red gold color, with more red than yellow in it.

Pure white tulle, prepared for autumn, are exquisite in their artistic simplicity.

Half shawls of white muslin and lace are worn with hats of shirred muslin to match.

Several new and pretty shades of lilac and violet are shown for house dresses.

Full velvet dresses are a feature of silk and wool gowns prepared for autumn trousseaus.

Black velvet capes are lined with white silk and trimmed with white silk pasciment.

Stuart flirts of costly lace falling over the corse are worn on many bodies slightly open in the neck.

In new autumn gowns there will be less use made of crepe in combination than of usual some solid colors richly bordered.

Light colored tulle warm woollens will be worn all through the autumn until the stormy days of early winter impose darker tints.

Very striking plaids are imported, with a silk surface thrown up above soft wool goods, and many of these are in Madras colors.

The gray and silver shades are strikingly beautiful this season, and in many cases these tints take the precedence of all others.

The favorite ribbon for dress garniture is a rich gold grain, irregularly striped with satins, and with a border of satin on each edge.

The dull surfaced one calf is now made up in dark brown and black shoes as well as in tan and russet, and has a soft, luxurious appearance.

The illusion bonnet will no longer last this season than they have been hitherto, and it is said that they will have been prepared for autumn use.

Embroidery of all kinds in silk, in metal and in beads will be one of the principal ornaments for winter toilets of all kinds, day or evening.

Flower bonnets and brims continue in high favor. Directoire hats of black chips are trimmed with scarfs of black tulle and sprays of pink or lilac orchids.

The Venetian silk very chafes designed for demurelles during the autumn are very lovely, both in color and fabric, and their handsome velvet ribbon trimmings give additional charm.

By way of preserving the general average, the bodies worn with evening dresses are rather higher on the shoulders since the introduction of the falling flirts sometimes worn with day dress.

THE ANIMAL KINGDOM.

Roswell P. Flower, New Yorker of note, shot an eagle with a seven foot spread of wings at Eagle Lake, Ont.

A fish hawk has built its nest on a chimney on Jonathan Hoffman's house, in Fishing Cove, Cape May county, N. J.

Louis Fenton, who is camping at Bella Vista, near Jamestown, N. Y., caught a twenty-two pound muskallunge the other day. It was 44 inches long and 45 inches across the back.

A Buxia (Fla.) paper tells of a pig alligator that drinks acid, going to the barrel and turning the faucet himself. It has been seen drinking from a barrel which he handles with his tail, to keep off the flies. Oh!

For years a Springfield, Mass., horse suffered from a sore shoulder. A veterinary surgeon who made a close examination of the shoulder found two pieces of old silver deeply imbedded in the flesh. How the coin got there is a mystery.

A negro on Mr. Roll Leonard's plantation, in Talbot county, shot a snake's head off a snake, and the snake was so badly hurt that it died. The body of the snake was then cut in two and about fifty more young snakes ran out. All!

A very rare specimen of animal life was discovered in Pennsylvania recently on the farm of Henry H. Davenport, father of George F. Davenport, of Medville, Mr. Davenport's son shot a snake which he supposed to be a white snake, and caught what turns out to be a genuine white woodchuck.

In Drowsville, Schuyllkill county, Pa., some senseless young men, in want of a lark, loaded a lot of corn in a wagon and hung it to a flock of geese. An hour later the woman who owned them found them comatose, and, thinking them dead, put their heads off with a knife. The carcasses down a mine branch. During the night the birds slept off their detachment, and next morning were found huddled in a gate in a naked and prodigious condition.

A curious scene was witnessed in Penn yard, Westminster, England. A sparrow was sitting on the top of a house, and a mouse appeared and proceeded to dispute with the sparrow his right to the dairy materials. A fight ensued, which lasted for some minutes, and then the sparrow beat a retreat. The sparrow had evidently been injured in the fight, and for a time he was unable to fly. At last the sparrow flew up and finished the incident by killing the mouse with a whip.

DON'T.

Don't wear a silk hat to a picnic.

Don't wear tight clothing of any sort.

Don't hang your Mackintosh in a warm place.

Don't affect horizontal stripes if you are short in stature.

Don't conceal a very tight glove with a well fitting glove.

Don't carry a silk umbrella at the middle.

Use the handle always.

Don't set cross-legged if you wish to preserve your figure for the future.

Don't wear an elaborately patterned vest with a Prince Albert coat.

Don't wear professedly open fronted dresses if you are tall and slender.

Don't wear made up neck wear if you can adjust easily and gracefully your ties and scarfs.

Don't—though some men with pretensions to style do—wear a high hat with a sack coat.

Don't stop on a cellar which has just been relined without examining it for raw edges.

Don't wear last season's hat with the idea that people will regard you as prosperous but eccentric.

Don't play tennis with the ordinary business man's shoes on. The right sort for the game can be had cheap.

Don't go into a heated argument on a summer day unless your liver is thoroughly well starved.

Don't wear your bath or raised pattern neck wear if your bath is harsh or brittle. Wear instead close woven silk, such as gros grain, etc.—Miss O'Halloran.

occasion.

"Enquirer" is a grievance of old standing.

We are ignorant of the regulations of the court regarding bread; but certainly there should be some stringent regulations for the protection of the public, and these regulations should be enforced. The bakers and the public alike demand that the council take action in such an important matter.

The Rathbun Company have recently secured about eighty-five square miles of valuable timber limits on the head waters of the River Trent. The acquisition of

A farmer named Douglas who was insane or eccentric took lodgings in Hamilton, the landlady became frightened because the man kept in his room and she called on the police. They made an arrest in the dark hours of the night when the poor man thinking they were again entering to capture him for an insane asylum, fired a shot from his revolver to frighten them off.

One of the police entered the room and shot at him. He was killed. The man was at random but it struck the lodger who died

a few hours afterwards. The police officer is second to no other exhibition in Canada.

could not find a third party man in Deseronto. That species of statement was appeared from his party. Two days later.

Miss Warton's millinery rooms were thronged with fair visitors last Saturday.

Delighted with her attractive display of hats,

bonnets, trimmings, etc., which certainly looked very inviting. Large hats, bouques and box trunks are the prevailing styles

this season. Velvet still takes the lead, although felt is largely worn. All colours prevail but green is favorite, the shade

being emerald, myrtle, serpent and bronze.

Terra cotta is another favorite and is in all the shades, the darkest mahogany, being very pretty. The trimmings are ribbons, birds, leathers. The season has opened auspiciously and Miss Warton expresses herself well pleased with the business prospects of the season.

Railway Extensions.

The bridge at Yarker was finished last Saturday and pronounced a graceful and substantial structure. The Yarker-Harrow branch will be soon ballasted. The extension from Tamworth to the Tweed is being rushed with great energy the rails being laid at the rate of a mile per day. Work on the station buildings has been commenced and is being erected with wonderful rapidity. The new line will be first class in every respect.

Let us Cult a Habit.

Nurserymen of all kinds have been exercising more and more industry persistently

this past year to get their advertisements in the newspapers, payment being almost invariably promised in kind—a donation of a few

NO LITTLE SURPRISE was expressed by those who saw THE BIG STORE team coming from the depot with a load after load of large iron-bound cases, and bales of goods, which had just arrived from Europe. We are glad to inform those who have been patiently and anxiously waiting to see these goods, coming as they do direct from the Mills and Looms of England, Ireland and Scotland, France and Germany, that they are now opened, marked, and placed on our shelves and tables.

WE NEED HARDLY POINT OUT to an intelligent Public the advantages to ourselves and patrons obtained by purchasing direct from the manufacturers and producers, as it must be apparent to everyone that by so doing the commissions of wholesale houses and of all middlemen are saved. We have carefully compared the cost of many lines of our imported goods with the prices charged by wholesale dealers, with the result that we find that at least 10 per cent. is saved by importing, and the goods are sure to be of the most recent manufacture, and consequently of the latest styles and designs. Moreover, in many instances, goods purchased from middlemen have lain in their warehouses for a long time which detracts from their value and wearing qualities, and as styles change every year goods carried in this way are behind the times, though often represented by those interested in selling them as being of the latest dates.

THE ONLY way to ensure getting New, Fresh Goods is by purchasing from the Manufacturers. Our experience in past years has been entirely satisfactory and has encouraged us this year to import not only larger quantities but to add many new lines, and we now place at the disposal of the Public a large and varied assortment of Dry Goods, &c., which for judicious selection, extent, variety, and general excellence, will compare favorably with the stock carried by any of the houses in Toronto and other large cities, and is certainly unequalled by any similar establishments in central Canada.

THE LIMIT of our space of course precludes an enumeration of the goods, sufficient it will be for us to say that the assortment includes Dress Goods of every popular make, Mantles and Mantle Cloths, Silks, Velvets, Furishes, Laces, Hosiery, House Furnishings, Cloths, Tweeds and Meltons. A Specialty is made of Tailoring to order.

WITH REGARD TO PRICES, The 10 per cent. which we save by importing we give direct to our Patrons, or in other words we save them 10 cents on every dollar's worth of goods they buy from us. Do not be deceived by small dealers who tell you and advertise that they import direct as the records at the Customs Office prove that we are the only direct importers of Dry Goods in this vicinity.

EVERY DEPARTMENT will be found replete with new and seasonable Goods.

WE HOPE to have the pleasure of showing you our Stock at an early date, confidently believing that the merits of the goods and the Low Prices charged for them will meet with your approval and induce you to buy.

LIGHT WEIGHT.

To the Editor of THE TRIBUNE,
Dear Sir: - I wish to get some information relative to bread, and to the law governing the sale of it, and the number of pounds that there should be in a loaf in our town. I am quite familiar with the law respecting the above points as regards cities, but I have come to the conclusion that we cannot have any law at all here, respecting the quantity (that is the number of pounds) which should constitute a loaf.
For a long time here in Deseronto light bread has been the rule, but for some months the evil has increased or in other words the weight of the bread in a loaf has decreased so that three and one half pounds is about all you can secure when purchasing what purports to be a four pound loaf, and the half loaves are worse still.
Our City Fathers are aware of these facts, the facts also, but no one likes to put their foot forward and kick up a row about this bread business. There is an outrage and should be remedied. If the price of bread is too low, I would say put up the price but give us what you claim to. If it be four pounds for a loaf put in four pounds of dough not three and a half.
Coming back to the first point again have we any law here regulating the weight of bread? If so, have the town machinery to enforce it?
Yours sincerely,
ENQUIRER

FAREWELL TO CAPT. JOHN GALE.

Capt. John Gale, who has been in charge of the Deseronto (The Salvation Army) during the past year, bade farewell this week, and left yesterday for his new post at Gananoque. Special services were held this week, all of which were deeply interesting.
On Sunday Capt. Gale, assisted by Capt. Paine, held three meetings all of which were large, enthusiastic and attended with rich blessings. Another joyous meeting was held on Monday evening. On Tuesday evening a select meeting and banquet was held when the Captain gave his formal farewell address, and the attendance of soldiers and friends. The Captain gave an excellent address referring to his work in Deseronto, and the good work generally of the Army. He would have had a stay, but duty called him elsewhere. After a number of testimonies by members of the Methodist Church, gave a very happy address in which he referred to the good work done by the Army in Deseronto in support of his statements. He wished them all success and hoped that God's blessing would ever attend the good work of the Army. He expressed his sorrow at parting with such a good officer as Captain Gale. The regular meeting being over, the whole party were invited to sit down to a table which was piled with all the delicacies which are calculated to please the palate. The Army had excelled themselves and certainly deserve credit for their kindly hospitality. Grace was sung and the feast enjoyed by all the Company.
After supper temporary Capt. Campbell assumed command and after a few pleasant remarks ordered up a collection when a liberal sum was raised. The Captain then stood upon the platform and on behalf of the Salvation Army read a fitting address to the people of Deseronto in which the presentation of a handsome album. The Captain replied expressing his gratitude to the members of the Army in Deseronto, and to the kind treatment ever accorded by the people of Deseronto. The Tribunes representative being called upon also bore testimony to the good done by the Army in Deseronto and elsewhere. The meeting was a great success. Another happy meeting was held on Wednesday evening. Captain Gale has proved a capable and efficient officer who has done good work in Deseronto. The new leaders to be a monument to his diligence. All classes and orders unite in wishing him success in Gananoque. We append the address presented on Tuesday evening:
ADDRESS.
Dear Captain Gale - This album which we herewith present you, we ask you to accept, not for its intrinsic value, but as a tribute to your worth and as a token of the high esteem in which you are held by the soldiers and friends of the Salvation Army in Deseronto.
We feel that it would be an injustice to ourselves and a discouragement of conscientious and zealous discharge of duties did we allow you to leave us and go to another field of labor without having testified in some manner to our appreciation of your faithful services while among us. While we have not attempted nor indeed can we ever hope, to repay you for the selfless heartedness and Christian energy which have been your characteristics here, perhaps with perfect propriety we may venture in recollections of the many kind acts which have endeared you to so many, and assure you not only that our best wishes follow you wherever you may go, but also that there for you a warm corner in our hearts and a cordial welcome to our homes.
We regret exceedingly that it is necessary that you should leave us, but our knowledge that the step is in your best interest, and in the interest of the Army, reconciles us in a tribute to the inevitable. We look forward to the time, when we shall meet again one shepherd and one fold. We pray God to go with you to your new field of labor, and that your labors in his vineyard may be blessed in the salvation of many precious souls.
In thus bidding you our formal farewell we add a hearty deed and loving "God bless you."

A NOVEL ACCOUNTANT.

An old tradesman in a village close to Kingston keeps his accounts in a singular manner. He hangs up two books, one on each side of the chimney and in one he puts all the money he receives, and in the other he puts the receipts and vouchers for the money he pays; at the end of the year, or whenever he wants to make up his accounts he empties the books, and by counting their several and respective leaves in each, which is a little trouble, to make a balance, which is doubtless as satisfactory to himself as if it had been done by "double entry."

CHAPTER I.

T WAS nearly midnight, and still the gay party lingered on the veranda. There had been a fortnight of "getting settled" at the new post, preceded by a month of marching that had brought the battalion from distant service to this strange Texas station. The new comers had been hospitably welcomed by the officers of the military garrison of infantry, and now, in recognition of their many courtesies, the field officer commanding the arriving troops had been entertaining the resident officers and ladies at dinner. The colonel was a host in himself, but preferred not to draw too heavily on his reserves of anecdote and small talk, so he had called in two of his subalterns to assist in the pleasant duty of being attentive to the infantry ladies, and just now, at 11:45 p. m., he was wondering if Lieut. Perry had not too literally construed his instructions, for that young gentleman was devoting himself to Mrs. Belknap in a manner so marked as to make the captain, her lawful lord and master, manifestly uneasy.

Mrs. Belknap, however, seemed to enjoy the situation immensely. She was a pretty woman at most times, as even her rivals admitted. She was a beautiful woman at all times, was the verdict of the officers of the detachment when they happened to speak of the matter among themselves. She was dark, with lustrous eyes and sweeping lashes, with coral lips and just luxuriance of tress, and a way of glancing sideways from under her heavily shadowed eyes that the younger and more impressionable men found quite irresistible when accorded the rare luxury of a tete-a-tete. Belknap was a big and boisterous man; Mrs. Belknap was small in stature, and with very soft, white hair, which she either brusquely repressed or oppressively cordial in manner; Mrs. Belknap was either gently and expensively indifferent to those whom she did not care to attract, or exceedingly sweet to those whose attentions she desired.

In their own regiment the young officers soon found that unless they wished to be involved in an unpleasantness with Belknap it was best to be only very moderately devoted to his pretty wife, and that those to whom an unpleasantness with the big captain might have had no terrors of consequence were deterred by the fact that Mrs. Belknap's devotee among the "youngsters" had invariably become an object of cold and icy aversion to the other dames and dames of the garrison. Very short lived, therefore, had been the little flirtations that sprang up from time to time in those remote posts wherein Capt. and Mrs. Belknap were assigned, and the chief matters of society; but now matters seemed to be taking other shape. From the very day that handsome Ned Perry disembarked in front of Belknap's quarters and with his military salute reported to the then commanding officer, Col. Draband, and his battalion of cavalry would arrive in the course of two or three hours, Mrs. Belknap had evinced a marked interest in his society and assumed an air of quasi-protection, and seemed to annoy her garrison sisters more than a little. For the time being all the cavalrymen were bachelors, either by accident or by design, and as none of the ladies of the "B" company accompanied the battalion on its march, and none were expected until the stations of the regiment in its new department had been definitely settled. The post surgeon, too, was living a life of single blessedness as the early spring wore on, his good wife had betaken herself, with the children, to the distant east as soon as the disappearance of the winter's snows rendered staging over the hard prairie roads a matter of no great difficulty.

It was the doctor himself, who, seated in an easy chair at the end of the veranda, first called the colonel's attention to Perry's devoted attention at Mrs. Belknap's side. She was reclining in a hammock, one little, slippers foot occasionally touching the floor and imparting a gentle, swinging motion to the affair, and making a soothing swish-extend as the chair swayed. He was a swish of skirts along the matting underneath. Her jeweled hands looked very slender and fragile and white as they glided in the soft light that shone from the open doorway of the parlor. They were busied in straightening out the links in the gold cord of his fob and cap and in rearranging a little silver bowl and tassel that was fastened in a clausy, man like, button of the buttons at the side; he, seated in a camp chair, was leaning forward so that his handsome, shapely head was only a trifle higher than hers, and the two—hers so dark and handsome, and his so fair and massive and strong—seemed rather to close together for the equality of Capt. Belknap, who had essayed to take a hand at whist in the parlor.

One or two of the ladies, also, were silent observers of the scene—silent as to the scene because, in conversation at the time with other officers of Lieut. Perry, they were unconsciously and how comments on his growing infatuation might be received. That their eyes should occasionally wander towards the hammock and then glance with sympathetic and intimate was natural enough. But when it became presently apparent that Mrs. Belknap was actually unfashioning the little silver bowl hanging on Ned Perry's cap ever since the day of his arrival—all the while, too, looking shyly up in his eyes as her fingers worked when it was seen that she presently doctored it from behind and then, half hesitatingly, but evidently in compliance with his wishes, handed it to him; when he was seen to toss it carefully—even contentedly—and then bend down over, as though gazing into her shaded eyes, Mrs. Lawrence could stand it no longer.

"Mr. Graham," said she, "isn't your friend, Mr. Perry, something of a flirt?" "Who—Ned?" asked Mr. Graham, in well feigned amazement and with sudden glance towards the object of his inquiry. "How in earth should I know anything about it? Of course you do not seek expert testimony in asking me. He tries, I suppose, to adapt himself to circumstances. But why do you ask?" "Because I see that he has been indulging in a little flirtation with that tassel on the hutton of his cap. He has worn it when off duty ever since he came; and we supposed it was something he cherished; I know she did."

Graham broke forth in a peal of merry laughter, but he no further replied, for just then the colonel and the doctor left their chairs, and, scattering over to the hammock, brought mighty relief to Belknap at the wisest table and vexation of spirit to his pretty wife. "What a tassel!" he was broken at a most interesting point, and Perry, rising suddenly, came over and joined Mrs. Lawrence.

If she expected to see him picked up or annoyed at the interruption and some other perturbed in manner, she was greatly mistaken. Nothing could have been more sunny and jovial than the greeting he gave her. A laughing apology to Graham for spoiling his tete-a-tete was accomplished in a moment, and then down by her side he sat and plunged into a merry description of his experiences at dinner, where he had been placed next to the chaplain's wife on the one hand, and she had been properly aggrieved at his attentions to Mrs. Belknap on the other.

"You must remember that Mrs. Wells is a very strict Presbyterian, Mr. Perry; and, for that matter, none of us have seen a dinner such as the colonel gave us this evening for many a long while. We are quite unused to the ways of civilization; whereas you have just come from the east—and long leave. Perhaps it is the fashion to be all devoted to one's next door neighbor at dinner."

Ned, who she was repellent and venerable as well as charming, replied, "You thought she would have been glad to leave the table when, after having refused sherry and Poutet-Cane for upwards of an hour, her glass was filled with champagne when she happened to be seated next to me."

"It is the first dinner of the kind she has ever seen here, Mr. Perry, and I don't suppose either Mr. or Mrs. Wells has been up so late before in years. He won't have enjoyed staying and watching her perform the duties of a hostess as soon as we left the table. Our society has been very dull, you know—only ourselves at the post all this last year, and nobody outside of it."

"One would suppose that with all this magnificent wealth there would be some congenial people ranging near you. Are there none at all?" "Absolutely none! There are some ranches down in the Washita country, but only one fine one over us; and that, from the point of view of the Atlantic. No one from there ever comes here; and Dr. Quinn is the only living soul in the garrison who ever got within the walls of that ranch. What he has to say positively refuses to tell, despite all our entreaties."

"You don't tell me there's a ranch with a mystery here near Rossett?" exclaimed Mr. Perry, with sudden interest. "Why, I do, indeed! It is possible you have been close to it without knowing and haven't heard of Dunavon Ranch?"

"I've heard there was such a thing; I saw it from a distance when out hunting the other day. But what's the mystery?" "That's what we want to know—and cannot find out. Now, there is an exploit worthy your energy and best efforts, Mr. Perry. There is a big, wealthy, well stocked ranch, the finest homestead buildings, we are told, in this part of Texas. They say it is beautifully furnished—that it has a fine library, a grand piano, all manner of things indicative of culture and refinement, and with its occupants—two or three only, and is an iceberg of an Englishman. All the people about the ranch are English, too, and the most repellent, horrid, and atrocious lot of men you ever saw."

"What do they do?" "They do everything they could to be civil to them, but not an invitation would they accept, not one would they extend. From that day to this none of the officers have had a word to say with the people at the ranch, and the soldiers know very little more. Once or twice a year some very ordinary looking fellow comes in a stagecoach, but they remain only a little while, and go away as suddenly as they came."

"And you have never seen any of them?" "Never, except at a distance. Nor has any one of the officers, except Dr. Quinn."

"And you have never heard anything about the mystery, and why they keep this policy of exclusiveness?" "We have heard all manner of things—some of them wildly romantic, some mysteriously tragic, and all of them, probably absurd. At all events, Capt. Lawrence has told me he did not wish me to repeat what I had heard, or to be concerned in any way with the stories about; so you must understand that I try the doctor. To change the subject, Mr. Perry, I see you have lost that mysterious little silver bowl and tassel you wore on your cap button. I fancied the chaplain to say he has no objection to it, and now it is gone."

Perry laughed, his blue eyes twinkling with fun; "If I will tell you how and where I lost it, will you tell me what you have heard about Dunavon Ranch?" "I cannot, unless Capt. Lawrence will allow his prohibition. Perhaps he will, though, for I think it was only because he was tired of hearing all our conjectures and theories."

"Well, will you tell me if I can induce the chaplain to say he has no objection?" "I will to-morrow—if you will tell me the place to-night."

"Is it a positive promise? You will tell me to-morrow all you have heard about Dunavon Ranch if I will tell you to-night all I know about the tassel?" "Yes—a promise."

"Very well, then. You are a witness to the fact, Graham. Now for my confession. I have worn that tassel ever since our parting ball at Fort Riley. That is to say, it has been fastened to that button ever since the ball until to-night. I have worn it with care, and I wear that cap on all my duties."

"And yet you let Mrs. Belknap take it off to-night?" "Why shouldn't I? There was no sentimentality attached to it. I haven't the faintest idea where it was, and only tied it there for the fun of the thing and to make Graham, here, ask questions."

"Mr. Perry!" gasped Mrs. Lawrence. "And you don't mean that Mrs. Belknap knows—that you told her what you have just told me?" "Well, no," laughed Perry. "I fancy Mrs. Belknap thinks as you thought—that it was a game of amour. Hallo! look! I'm talking and blowing gently from the prairie. What can that be?"

Mrs. Lawrence rose suddenly to her feet and gazed southeastward in the direction in which the young officer pointed. It was a starry, starry night. A soft wind was blowing gently from the south and bearing with it the fragrance of spring blossoms and far away flowers. Others, too, had arisen, attracted by Perry's sudden exclamation. Mrs. Belknap turned languidly in her hammock, and looked over her pretty white shoulder. The colonel followed her eyes with his and gave a start of surprise. The doctor turned slowly and composedly and looked silently towards the glistening valley, and then upon the officers who sat in the hall there fell sudden astonishment.

"What on earth could that have been?" asked the colonel. "It glauced like the head light of a locomotive, away down the valley of the Monee, then suddenly went out."

"Be silent a moment and watch," whispered Mrs. Lawrence to Perry. "You will see it again; and—watch the doctor."

Soon enough, even as they were all looking about and commenting on the strange apparition, it suddenly glared forth a second time, shining full and lustrous as an unclouded planet, yet miles away beyond and above the fringe of forest, the valley of the Monee, and with the little stream. Full half minute it shone, and then, abruptly as it came, was hidden from sight.

Perry was about starting forward to join the colonel when a little hand was laid on his shoulder, and there, too, he whispered, "Then take me in to Capt. Lawrence. Do you see that the doctor is leaving?"

Without saying a word to any one, the pair slipped away quietly, withdrawn from the group on the veranda. He could not well leave by the front gate without attracting attention; but he stole leisurely into the hall, took up a book that lay on the table, and passed down the stairs, and out into the night, smoking and chatting there, entered the sitting room on the south side of the hall—the side opposite the parlor where the white game was in progress—and there he was lost to sight.

At this time the bright light burst upon the view of the gazers. A third time, sharply and suddenly, it disappeared. Then for a moment all was silence and watchfulness; but it came no more. Perry looked questioningly in his companion's face. She had turned a little white, and he felt sure that she was shivering.

"Are you cold?" he asked her, gently. "No—not that; but I hate mysteries, after what I've heard, and we haven't seen that light in ever so long. Come here to the corner our moment." And he pointed to the corner of the hall, the big wooden, barn-like residence of the commanding officer.

"Look up there," she said, pointing to a dark window under the peaked dormer of the cottage to the south. "That is the doctor's cottage."

In a few seconds a faint gleam seemed to creep through the slats. Then the slats themselves were thrown wide open, and with a suddenness that seemed to come from the sky behind it, and with a very instant, a broad white light shone forth over the roof of the veranda. Another moment and footsteps were heard presently approaching them along the grass.

"Come," she said, plucking at his sleeve, "come away; it is the doctor."

"That would seem like hiding. No, Mrs. Lawrence, let us stay until he comes."

"Don't ask me now, I—I did not want to see what we have seen, and I had heard queer stories and could not believe them. Take me in to Capt. Lawrence, please. And Mr. Perry, you won't speak of this to any one, will you? Indeed, if I had known, I would not have come out here for the world; but I didn't believe it, even when she went away and took the children to the ranch."

"Who went away?" "Mrs. Quinn—the doctor's wife. And she was such a sweet woman, and so devoted to the cause of the Indians."

"Well, pardon me, Mrs. Lawrence, I don't see through this thing at all. Do you mean that the doctor has anything to do with the mystery?" "She bowed her head as they turned back to the house: 'I must not tell you any more to-night. You will be sure to hear something of it all, here. Every one on the piazza saw the lights, and all who were here before you came knew what they meant.'"

"Signals, of some kind, from Dunavon Ranch."

To Be Continued.

The Indian Problem Not Yet Solved.

While we cannot help the people of the whole northwest, and especially the citizens of Dakota, on the consummation of their long desire, the opening of the reservation by no means puts an end to the Indian problem, nor does it remove the cause of the controversy. On the contrary, it is scarcely more than the beginning. Only a part of the reserve is acquired by the government; and the same questions will doubtless arise in future, as to that part, as have arisen in the past. Again, it seems as if the government were merely abandoning one posture of the "guardian and ward" attitude in order to assume another. The reservation system, with its issue of rations and consequent tendencies toward idleness and pauperism, is a friend remaining. Yet we have only the same thing in another form in the practice of accumulating Indian cash funds for the benefit of the Indian, to be held in trust by the nation, and to be distributed to the individual beneficiary. The purchase of these lands by the nation means a permanent investment in trust for the Indian. And it is not according to nature that a quarterly payment to him of so many dollars in cash, or the issue of so many blankets and so many pounds of flour, beef and pork—St. Paul Pioneer-Press.

He Sold the Samples.

A druggist who had arrived from Arizona was in town last week taking orders for shirts. He says there are bad men down there. The cowboys got hold of the shirts, and he says he sold them. He replied that he wouldn't sell them for any price. "Won't, eh? a bystander. Well, now, I guess you will. The tough citizens of the town, especially some of the small sized canon that he carried in his belt and told 'the boys' to help themselves."

And the boys, many striped shirts and underwear of all kinds, was divided among the crowd. "The boys" paid the scared druggist his own price without a word, and he, too, was divided among the crowd. "The boys" paid the scared druggist his own price without a word, and he, too, was divided among the crowd.

When Dr. Forbes left the farm house he made his way to one of the most elegant suburban residences the city boasts. He received a cordial greeting from his mistress, who, with her hair pulled back, elderly lid in widow's weeds.

After a short conversation on different topics Dr. Forbes said, abruptly: "Mrs. Scarle, you said the other day you had nothing to live for, since your son had disappointed you so grievously. I have come to tell you where you can get a beautiful toy, human, but one which can never turn against you."

Then in rapid, earnest words he related the particulars I have already related of her life, from her childhood to her present position. Mrs. Scarle was faintly only in her pride of birth and position, her heart being kind and easily moved by pity. She at once rang the bell, ordered the carriage, and upon its being brought entered it with the doctor and was driven to the farm house.

Dr. Forbes explained to the helpless girl what arrangements had been made for her comfort, and he never will forget to mention of Mrs. Scarle's name. At first she refused even to see her, but at length consented. As the lady bent over her, infinite pity in her still fine eyes, she murmured reproachfully: "If you only come for me three months ago!"

"Where were you then?" asked the doctor, quickly. "I was in a fool's paradise," she replied, bitterly.

So the wail of the wreck was taken to the elegant home of Mrs. Scarle, and Dr. Forbes was content.

Mrs. Scarle had been a widow for several years, and had no child, a son whom she worshipped with an idolatrous love. He well merited all the love bestowed upon him, being handsome, courteous, refined, and intelligent, as she fondly imagined. He proved himself only human by one day falling in love with a lovely girl far beneath him in the social scale. His mother was horrified, resolute to keep her son from her, and, using all manner of bitter, unreasoning rebuffs, Kenneth was very patient, for he loved his mother tenderly. He spent an entire year in a vain endeavor to win the heart of the girl, who, at twenty-five years old, and having a fortune of his own, inherited from his father, he asserted his manhood, and went to marry her.

His mother wrote him one bitter, unkind letter, to which she received no reply, nor had she heard from him since. She was very unhappy, and welcomed Edna's coming as an agreeable diversion from her sad thoughts.

She called in physician after physician, sparing no expense. They talked learnedly of a shock, of paralysis of the spinal cord, but could suggest no remedy. The girl's faculties were singularly acute, but her body remained inert, lifeless. Every convenience and comfort was provided for her; among other things a wheeled chair, in which she was pushed about the lovely grounds by a few maids. She was seldom left alone, a rosy chequered attendant being always at hand during Mrs. Scarle's absence.

LOVE WORKS WONDERS.

"It is the strangest case I have ever encountered in all my thirty years' practice," said Dr. Forbes, and all the other physicians called in echoed his words. There had been a terrible railroad accident. Few were killed outright, but death resulted in many cases from the injuries received.

Among those whose death was hourly expected was the patient of whom the doctor had just spoken. She was a young girl of perhaps 15 or 16, an exquisite lines that amazed and delighted all who beheld her.

She was picked up insensible at the scene of the wreck, and had since lain voiceless, senseless, immovable as a marble statue, at a farm house to which she had been carried. Who she was or where she belonged remained an impenetrable mystery, although her description had been widely advertised.

Several noted physicians had interested themselves in her case, but one and all confessed themselves baffled in her strange condition. There was no parent bodily injury. Each slender, rounded limb was as free from spot or blemish as when it came from the hands of the Mother. The fair body was equally as perfect as the first. The only blue spot had been found next the spine.

For eight long weeks she had lain in this state of insensibility, with closed eyes and pale limbs crossed upon her breast. Scores of people had been to see her and gone away, her exquisite lineage indelibly impressed upon their hearts.

Contributions had been freely made for her benefit, but now some new object of pity engrossed the public, and the project of removing her to some charitable institution was being discussed. Dr. Forbes, however, would not let her be taken out of the house. The girl looked like an angel as she lay upon the clean white bed, her long limbs crossed above her heart, her face like marble in its impassiveness, yet warm with life. She had a wealth of golden hair, and it lay about her like a veil. The discussion had become heated, Dr. Forbes contending for delay in removing her. Suddenly all were startled by a clear, sweet voice exclaiming:

"Do not hesitate, gentlemen. Carry me off to the poor house at your earliest convenience. No other place could be so suitable for such a useless clod."

All eyes turned in utter amazement to find a pair of dark eyes regarding them woefully.

Dr. Forbes instantly sprang to her side. "There isn't any change, doctor, save that my tongue is loosened, and I can open my eyes."

This proved to be the case, but a little later she found that she could move her head. There the improvement ended, however, much to the good doctor's regret. They plied her with questions, but she absolutely refused to disclose her identity, only admitting to the name of Edna. She urged them to take her to the charity hospital, saying it was where she belonged.

It was at length decided to leave her where she was until further effort could be made to induce her to disclose the address of her friends. That she belonged to some good family was apparent from her refined appearance. Her clothing was elegant and costly. A dainty watch and chain and other valuable articles of jewelry were found upon her person. All this but deepened the mystery.

LOCAL ITEMS.

This has been an off week for local news. Now that the fall fair is over we may expect a spell of fine weather.

Miss Campbell, of the paragon, assisted at the Shannonville concert last Tuesday evening.

It afforded us much pleasure to meet our old friend, Dr. McLaren, at the Shannonville fair.

There are two hundred and thirty pupils now receiving instruction in the Deseronto and Dumb Institute, Belleville.

Messrs. W. C. B. Rathbun and H. Ayleworth attended the Napanee fair at which they acted as judges of cattle.

The Rev. of Deseronto was honoured with a seat on the platform at the Laurier meeting in Belleville on Monday evening.

Teachers and pupils in the public schools are addressing themselves to their duties with great energy and the work of the term will show good results.

The Deseronto broke her screw on Wednesday and her place was in consequence taken by the slow but sure and comfortable passenger steamer Ella Ross.

Mrs. H. Dougherty, of Colborne, was a sister of Mrs. A. H. McLaughlin and mother of Messrs. John, James and Chas. Dougherty, all of whom are in the employ of the Rathbun Company.

Mr. John Hoppes has assumed the duties of foreman in the Terra Cotta Works, Mr. E. W. Lloyd being head of the shipping department. Mr. F. Allan is assisting Mr. L. Hoppes as time keeper.

A very sad calamity befell Charles Fraser, the twenty year old son of Isaac Fraser, of Ernestown, in Manitoba. He was working about a steam thrasher when the boiler exploded killing him almost instantly.

There are far too many residents of the county of Hastings leaving for the United States this year. We will remind all such that in the basin of the Mackenzie River there are millions of acres of land awaiting settlers.

The board of health inspector reports great dissatisfaction all through the town on account of the inaction of the Board of Health in not expediting a piece of ground for dumping refuse thereupon. He is being stung by people every day, but is powerless to act.

Mr. John Prickett says that the water in the Bay of Quinte is lower than it has been ever remembered to be before. The water falls regularly every year but rises late in this season. Every seventh year is an exception; when the water falls but does not rise again as usual. This is a seventh year.

Mrs. Oronhyatekha, of "The Pines," has kindly placed on our editorial table some splendid specimens of produce, of the finest variety. They are beautifully shaped fruit, large and in every respect superior in quality. Dr. Oronhyatekha has raised a splendid crop of this excellent fruit this year.

There is much grumbling at the grocers in town on account of the terrible quality of butter which they are dispensing these days. People sigh for the old days of honest pleomargarine. What is the cause of this? But we forgot, Deseronto does not come under the regulations of the health act.

The Rev. Mr. Patton officiated on Saturday, the 5th, at Mount Pleasant, on occasion of the funeral of Susan Todd, late of Deseronto and Tuesday the 8th, at Deseronto at that of John Watson. The friends of both have our sincere sympathy in their loss.

The Gladstonians continue to make headway in the elections having elected their candidate in Peterborough this week, thus wresting a seat from the Unionists, and having also carried the constituency in Scotland by a greatly increased majority. They have strong hopes also of carrying North Bucks in the course of a few days.

Mr. E. C. French spent several days in Deseronto where he was interviewed by the inevitable newspaper reporter, and gave him his opinions of the great west and Deseronto especially. He had also the honour of dining with the Governor of the State of Colorado. He has also visited Salt Lake City and viewed the wonders of Mormon-land.

Our thanks are due to Hon. Honore Mercier, Premier of the Province of Quebec, for a copy of his interesting pamphlet, entitled "A General Sketch of the Province of Quebec." It is an interesting work in which is given a great mass of well arranged and useful information, written in a manner creditable to the gifted and popular statesman who so ably directs the affairs of that province.

We suppose that the erection of new repair shops will be deemed sufficient excuse for again deferring the construction of a new wide boardwalk along the west side of South Mill street. Some unwary pedestrian will have his leg broken and his location dashed inboard and out of one of those loose planks which are left unfastened presumably for the purpose of giving an interesting item or two for THE TRIBUNE.

On Wednesday Mr. Chas. Hendridge had the second finger of his left hand cut off at the second joint and the third finger also lacerated while working at the joiner in the saw factory. Dr. Vandervoort dressed the wounded hand.

Van Every's cheap fall excursion to New York and return will leave Toronto at 12:30 noon, suspension bridge at 4 p. m. on Saturday, Oct. 10th. Round trip tickets at 75c. free of extra charge. Sleeping cars run through. Fare $9.00 to New York and return. Address or call upon H. W. Van Every, 3 Adelaide at East, Toronto.

A public meeting will be held in the Masonic Hall, Shannonville, on the evening of Saturday, October 10th, when will be read the report of Dr. Oronhyatekha, S. C. R. of the Independent Order of Foresters. After the meeting a concert will be instituted. The Order of Foresters will be invited to the S. C. R. will be assisted on the occasion by brethren from Deseronto and other towns.

Lennox Fair.

A large number of people went down to Lennox on Wednesday to attend the fair. They state that the attendance was very large and that the exhibition was in every way a success.

Military Opening.

Notwithstanding the down-pour of rain the military opening of the Lennox fair was a very successful one. Many visitors, all of whom expressed themselves delighted with the attractive display which had been prepared for their edification.

Mr. Dalton has now the largest stock of millinery and dress goods that she has ever shown and the ladies of the district should bear this fact ever in mind.

Great Sale of Boots & Shoes.

Mr. T. N. Carter has recently made heavy importations of boots and shoes and has now one of the largest and best assortments of goods in that line ever seen in Deseronto.

He is holding a sale and is offering boots and shoes at prices which cannot be rivaled elsewhere in this district. Call and see him before purchasing elsewhere. Bargains are offered to old and young, rich and poor alike.

Remember the old stand, opposite O'Connor House, Main street.

Arbitration Case.

The board of arbitrators to whom has been assigned the settlement of the Peterson ferry matters in the office of Mr. E. W. Rathbun to-morrow. Mr. E. W. Rathbun has been chosen by the Dominion government; Mr. D. B. Solmes by the Municipality of Deseronto; Mr. G. A. Anderson, by Wm. Powles.

When the arbitrators give their decision, another question will arise. Will it be respected by the Municipality of Deseronto and local government? The Privy Council of England will likely decide that matter.

New Government Buildings.

There is need for immediate action on the part of the town council and citizens generally if Deseronto is to have new government buildings. Deseronto, it is admitted, is entitled to a first class post office, custom house, &c. now that it is a town of nearly 4,000 people. Figures, which we present elsewhere, giving some of the exports of that port, show that the town is doing a large business, and many towns have been provided with public buildings of imposing character.

But it is unnecessary to present an array of facts to show the duty of the government. Sir Hector Langevin, who visited us last year, was impressed with the thoughtfulness of our claim, and will only be too glad, if reminded by a deputations or otherwise, to place a respectable sum in the estimates for such a purpose.

It is at this time of year that the minister of public works prepares his estimates for presentation to parliament. Why not send a delegation to Ottawa, or take other steps to urge our claims upon the government? Let there be no delay in this important matter.

Political Meetings.

A party went out to Belleville on Monday evening to attend a political meeting, addressed by Hon. Wilfrid Laurier in that city. The opera house was crowded on the occasion.

Mr. S. B. Barrett, M. P., presided and introduced the different speakers in a happy manner. After an opening speech by Mr. W. T. Preston, Mr. Laurier delivered a long and eloquent address in which he dwelt chiefly upon the merits of the Liberal party.

Town Council.

The town council will meet next Thursday for business, but their chief business on the occasion will be an effort to dislodge their responsibility to the public in the selection of a dumping ground for sanitary purposes.

The earlier reports that the town council had removed refuse from their premises. But the council have made a league with death. "We will not allow refuse to be removed from our premises," is their official motto.

Deseronto and Kingston.

The Ontario territory was opened to settlement about the end of April. The site of the present city of Guthrie is a city of eighteen miles with electric light, railway stations and all the other signs of civilization. There are miles of well built streets lined with fine mansions, opera houses, churches, school buildings, &c., &c. Six newspapers, three of them dailies, are published and widely circulated. Such growth is probably unparalleled even on this continent.

The Presbytery of Kingston met at Melrose yesterday for the ordination and induction of Rev. James Rattray into the responsible office of Minister of Melrose, Lansdale and Shannonville. There was a large attendance and the sessions of the congregation being well represented.

A. Young presided and asked the prescribed questions and conducted the ordination service. Rev. John McKinnon preached an excellent sermon from Romans ii, chapter 10th verse. Rev. Alexander Young addressed the people and Rev. L. C. McLaughlin, of Deseronto, presided. After the services Mr. Rattray was introduced to his new congregation receiving a cordial welcome. He enters upon his new charge under most favorable auspices.

AT HARPER'S FERRY.

During the John Brown raid at Harper's Ferry, while Brown held the town and engine-house, he had picked stationed at different points commanding the place.

John Brown's right-hand man, Lieutenant Stevens, with four men, held the end of the bridge which crosses the Potomac until they were driven thence by the citizens of Harper's Ferry. They then retreated toward the engine-house, held by John Brown. Meanwhile ten or twelve men (citizens) entered the Gault House, by means of the rear entrance, and by firing from the windows and doorways of the back-room of the saloon, they were able to command the street from the bridge to the engine-house.

As Stevens and his men were being driven from the bridge, they were fired upon by the men in the Gault House, and one of the men, Thompson by name, fell.

Stevens did not know his unit he reached the engine-house. Nothing daunted, in the face of almost certain death, he returned alone and tried to carry his friend and comrade, Thompson, away. He was fired at and fell badly wounded, but not before he returned the fire. He and Thompson were then carried into the Shannonville Hotel. Then Thompson was immediately taken out on the bridge and killed and his body thrown into the river.

Just as they entered the room Mrs. Foulke, the wife of the landlord, entered, and with the tender heart and love of a woman, pleaded with the crowd to spare Stevens' life. Stevens, supposing that they were going to kill him, then there, with an effort, raised his arms in supplication and said: "Gentlemen, have respect for the lady do not kill me in her presence, but take me out and kill me."

His bravado was his life for the time. He was taken to Charlestown, and afterwards tried, convicted and hanged. He mounted the scaffold firm and undaunted, and with a smile on his countenance—Philippa Press.

FRUIT GROWERS CONVENTION.

Over a year ago it was agreed between the Montreal Horticultural Society and the Ontario Fruit Growers' Association that a Dominion Convention of Fruit Growers would be of great benefit to the Dominion.

In discussing the capabilities of the various Provinces for fruit culture, the most highly cultivated and those adapted to the various sections of the Dominion. Economic Entomology, and various other subjects of general interest.

The report of such a meeting would undoubtedly be of great value for distribution by the Government in foreign countries, as well as through the whole of our vast Dominion.

The Minister of Agriculture, Mr. D. B. Solmes, has given his approval to the scheme, and a sum of £2,000 has been made to carry out the proposed convention. It will be held in Ottawa, in February next, and the programme is now being arranged.

PERSONAL GOSSIP.

Since his recent marriage Malsomier has neglected his paleontology.

President Harrison has leased his house in Indianapolis for three years.

The Rev. Ellis Howell, of Marshall, Ill., has just married his one-thousandth couple.

Dr. Nansen, who lately completed an adventurous journey across Greenland, is only 27 years old.

Cen. Crook says that Sitting Bull has no reputation among the Indians as a brave, but only as a medicine man.

Samuel Ayres, an Adventist, living in Worcester, Mass., predicts the end of the world on the night of Oct. 7, 1889.

Edwin S. Comor, an aged actor of Philadelphia, has acted Ricchetti 1,001 times, but has never seen any one else do it.

Ex-Mayor McGowan, of Trenton, who is prominently mentioned as a candidate for governor, began life as a newsboy.

Mr. Gladstone allows all the people in the neighborhood of Tyndinaga to freely use his splendid library of 30,000 volumes.

Henry Irving writes to a friend denying emphatically that he has complained of unfair treatment by the American press.

Dr. Talmage says he has been deceived and defrauded by many people, but that no newspaper man ever broke professional faith with him.

Stens Reeves, the English tenor, is about to take another farewell of the public. He considers the money thus obtained the crown of glory.

Dr. Oscar Montelius estimates that the stone age ended about 3,500 years ago in Sweden, where it reached a very high development.

It has been stated that the lamented Father Damien attributed his leprosy to the inoculation of an eruption in the scalp through the agency of flies.

Eighty years ago Tempon, Darwin, Gladstone, Lincoln, Oliver Wendell Holmes, Edgar Allan Poe and Lord Houghton were born; 1809 was a great year.

Lord Charles Beresford is authority for the statement that the guns of the transatlantic liner Teutonic could have sunk Nelson's whole fleet in half an hour.

Gustave Dumeoutier has constructed a veritable Buddhist temple in Paris, on the Champ de Mars, for the use of Ananimites and Chinese who may visit the exposition.

The president of the French council, M. Tirard, is a "Cockney Parisian." Before embarking in politics he kept a jeweler's shop—imitation jewelry and "Bourgeois" in "Gilded."

Philip Graham, who left the United States forty years ago, is now at the head of probably the largest store business in Bombay, India, employing as many as 7,000 men.

Alexander MacKenzie, ex-premier of Canada, is in delicate health. Mr. MacKenzie was offered the doubtful honor of knighthood ten years ago and refused it. He is a bricklayer by trade.

The late Judge Terry took part in the first battle of Bull Run, fighting in civilian's clothes on the southern side. He commanded an independent body of Texas cavalry later in the war.

The late Daniel K. Steward, who is said to have been "the whitest" of "whites" in "Gilded," made his money on snuff and tobacco. He was a hotelman and never succeeded in his attempts to Great Britain.

Chamorro M. Dumas, who has recently had an opportunity to see the Emperor of the French, of Emperor William, is very much impressed by his military. He says that the Emperor is a great man.

Robert Ray Hamilton is 55 years old.

1889 :- AUTUMN :- 1889

NO LITTLE SURPRISE Was expressed by those who saw THE BIG STORE team coming from the depot with a load after load of large iron-bound cases, and bales of goods, which had just arrived from Europe. We are glad to inform those who have been patiently and anxiously waiting to see these goods, coming as they do direct from the Mills and Looms of England, Ireland and Scotland, France and Germany, that they are now opened, marked, and placed on our shelves and tables.

WE NEED HARDLY POINT OUT to an intelligent Public the advantage obtained by purchasing direct from the manufacturers and producers, as it must be apparent to everyone that by so doing the commissions of wholesale houses and of all middlemen are saved. We have carefully compared the cost of many lines of our imported goods with the prices charged by wholesale dealers, with the result that we find that at least 10 per cent. is saved by importing, and the goods are sure to be of the most recent manufacture, and consequently of the latest styles and designs. Moreover, in many instances, goods purchased from styles and designs. Moreover, in many instances, goods purchased from their value and wearing qualities, and as styles change every year goods carried in this way are behind the times, though often represented by those interested in selling them as being of the latest dates.

THE ONLY WAY to ensure getting New, Fresh Goods is by purchasing from the Manufacturers. Our experience in past years has been entirely satisfactory and has encouraged us this year to import not only large quantities but to add many new lines, and we now place at the disposal of the Public a large and varied assortment of Dry Goods, etc., which for judicious selection, extent, variety, and general excellence, will compare favorably with the stock carried by any of the houses in Toronto and other large cities, and is certainly unequalled by any similar establishments in central Canada.

THE LIMIT of our space of course precludes an enumeration of the goods, sufficient it will be for us to say that the assortment includes Dress Goods of every popular make, Mantles and Mantle Cloths, Silks, Velvets, Plushes, Laces, Hosiery, House Furnishings, Cloths, Tweeds and Meltons. A Specialty is made of Tailoring to order.

WITH REGARD TO PRICES, The 10 per cent. which we save by importing we give direct to our patrons, or in other words we save them 10 cents on every dollar's worth of goods they buy from us. Do not be deceived by small dealers who tell you and advertise that they import direct as the records at the Customs Office prove that we are the only direct importers of Dry Goods in this vicinity.

EVERY DEPARTMENT will be found replete with new and seasonable Goods.

WE HOPE to have the pleasure of showing you our Stock at an early date, confidently believing that the merits of the goods and the Low Prices charged for them will meet with your approval and induce you to buy.

The North Hastings fair was a success. Peterborough will hold a winter carnival. Kingston expended $24,724 on streets last year. The order of Chosen Friends is growing in Bath. About 3,000 people attended the Ernestown fair at Odessa. The Ontario Normal School teachers meet in convention next week. The new Presbyterian church at Tamworth is nearing completion. The factory at Perth has been shut down for lack of work. Rev. Mr. Millard, of Lansdowne, will remove to the Northwest. New lodges of Oddfellows were instituted at Hagers on Monday. Rowdies have been disturbing the Salvation Army meetings at Concession. The electric light will be introduced into the woolen mills at Campbellton. The Mayor of Port Hope has resigned as it is his intention to remove to Lindsay. The Centerville fair was a great success, much better than those of former years. Rev. Mr. Partridge, Rector of Parkman, will leave that town and settle in California. John H. Gordon has received the appointment of bailiff of the first division court of Hastings. Rev. Mr. Scott, of Toronto, is the new pastor of the Presbyterian church at Campbellton. Sixty-five tons of cheese, of the value of $5,000 were recently shipped from Perth in one day. Capt. H. C. Thompson, of the Auburn Dental, and a native of Kingston, died on Sunday. Dr. Yeux, Tamworth, has sold his house to N. Wagar, Enterprise, and will move to Wellington. Campbellton boasts of two of the finest school buildings in Ontario, both built on modern plans. One company alone shipped nearly $25,000 worth of goods from the 16 Thousand Island to Chicago this year. A woman very much under the influence of liquor was a sight in the Kingston opera house the other evening. The Oswego Times states that a new boat will be built by Americans to ply between Port Hope and Rochester. Rev. Mr. Gillette, pastor of the Bloomfield Methodist church, is obliged on account of ill health to resign his pastorate. Wm. Beaudry, Sr., and his son William were acquitted of the charge of larceny of a heifer from Matilda Minnie, of Elzevir. The Masonic brethren of Bath are enjoying very pleasant meetings at which addresses are delivered by prominent brethren. D. Milnes, butcher, of Kingston, grew a cabbage this year which measured 41 inches in circumference and 10 inches in diameter. The great political question in Lennox is, who will get the appointment as caretaker of the lighthouse on "The Brothers" near Amherst Island. Mr. Reynolds, a dashing widow of Cavan, entered an action for $30,000 against Samuel Jamieson, a sprightly old gent of 75 summers at the recent assizes in Peterboro. The jury awarded the fair plaintiff $800 and costs. Mr. Benedict, the mining expert of New York, who has been examining the phosphate properties in Canada, states that American energy and enterprise would soon develop them to an unlimited extent. At present they are practically unworked. Mrs. W. Kerr, aged 73, of the 10th con. of Seymour, died very suddenly on Sunday night under peculiar circumstances. She was working in her garden, and had been milking the cows, and afterwards was performing her household duties when she began to raise wind from her stomach, and in ten minutes was dead, having turned quite black. The Perth Courier of last week says: "On Thursday morning, Miss 'Mag' Robinson, who was working in her garden, had been milking the cows, and afterwards was performing her household duties when she began to raise wind from her stomach, and in ten minutes was dead, having turned quite black."

TYENDINGA AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.

FAIR AT SHANNONVILLE. The annual exhibition of the Tyendinaga Agricultural Society was held at Shannonville, on Tuesday and Wednesday last. The weather during the two weeks previous had been hot and unfavorable, but on that date it lifted up and proved fine. Though a chilling water wind prevailed all day, the attendance was very good. The fair was well regulated and the exhibits were of this Society and there was very keen competition in the different departments. The entries of horses were very numerous and more numerous than in former years. The display of cattle was excellent and we were repeatedly assured during the day that in this department it exceeded the Bay of Quinte District. Fair recently held at Belleville. There was a strong array of fine horses and the judges had a difficult task to perform in deciding between the numerous competitors. The poultry exhibit was not as large as it should have been and the same may be said of the sheep, goats, etc. The exhibit was very good, the fruit, vegetables and garden produce were much admired. The fine art departments showed much to be admired, the Misses J. Wilson, J. Clarke having many beautiful paintings, drawings, etc. President Moore, Secretary McFarlane and the directors must be congratulated for the success of the fair. One great drawback to the fair is the great distance which separates the two great departments of exhibitors. A place is a necessity and the directors will soon be called upon to remedy this defect.

LOCAL ITEMS.

A very heavy rainfall last Saturday.

The leaves are later than usual in falling this year.

Captain Porter of the Varuna says he will run regular trips from Brighton to Plover next season.

Old Gabriel, an Indian, of Monterey County, California, is said to be the oldest man in the world.

The sch. Grantham, Capt. Donnelly, has been up on the marine railway this week undergoing repairs.

Judge Fraick, W. R. Aylsworth and A. R. Wood are at Belleville this day auditing the public accounts.

Work on the new high school building is progressing, the masonry part having been added during the past week.

A woman is a very contradictory creature. Even at the altar she tells of collating minister that she would rather cook.

The water in Lake Ontario is unusually low at present, and almost daily boats get aground on entering or leaving Port Dalhousie harbor.

The council have taken the advice of The Tribune and have improved market square and widened the boardwalk for a considerable distance. Well done!

There was quite a heavy fall of snow at Sudbury and other western points on Sunday last. In many places the beautiful was from four to six inches deep.

Chief Koghtetah is now in Waterbury, Connecticut, where he is doing a rushing business, the people there at Cleveland having speedily discovered the rare merit of his herb medicine.

Mr. Bloomfield, formerly mate of the ship. Hero, will command that vessel for the remainder of the season. Mr. Bloomfield has always been regarded as a competent navigator and popular officer.

The thanks of THE TRIBUNE are due to Mr. A. McFarlane, Secretary, and several directors of the Tyendinaga Agricultural Society, for several courtesies extended on the occasion of the Shakespearean fair.

We have received a copy of the St. Lawrence News published at Iroquois. It is a neatly printed and novel journal which will, we are certain, meet with a good reception and well deserved patronage.

The director of the mint says that the exportation of $70,000,000 in gold this summer represents the money spent by Americans in visiting the Paris Exposition.

He also, in proof, cites the fact that the United States has gained $85,000,000 during the same period.

Mr. Pigen will think away until Monday at lower Mill street, but he will never succeed in making that great centre of traffic a good roadway until he has laid down pavement. The sponsor he makes up his mind to that effect the better for Deseronto and the Rathbun Company.

The supplemental elections took place in France last Sunday and resulted in another triumph for the Republicans. The new chamber of deputies is composed of 384 Republicans and 202 Royalists and Boulangists. France has done well in this adhering to democratic principles.

Oswego barley advice says it is up hill work to get the trade started on Canadian barley even at low prices. The low price of barley is, educating Canadian farmers to the necessity of closer trade relations with the great empire.

It is a pity the United States authorities could not remove the duty from this cereal and thus cause a boom in trade in the Bay of Quinte district.

Messrs. P. J. Wims and C. Crawford have put down a crossing on Mill street, the only improvement made on that street north of Dundas with the exception of the boardwalk on the east side. A boardwalk is required on the west side. A boardwalk is required on the south side of Dundas street between Centre and Mill streets and on Edmund also between the same streets. Many residents have asked THE TRIBUNE to urge upon the council the necessity of these reforms.

The Editor Remembers.

Mr. G. W. Wright, of Kingsford, was in Deseronto market on Tuesday morning and called at THE TRIBUNE office with a large package of most luscious grapes for the season. He was very generous in his offer. The grapes are fine fruit we could not desire better.

A Suggestion.

Why do not the Sabbath School teachers of Deseronto invite Rev. D. George and Mr. Van Johnston, of Belleville, to give an account of the great World's Sabbath School Convention held in London during the past summer? These gentlemen were delegates and would speak to us by declining the invitation. Their addresses would tend to encourage and stimulate teachers and the people generally in Sunday school work.

To the Farmers.

It is obvious that the Tyendinaga Agricultural Society has started out on a new era of progress and that it is destined to be a source of much permanent benefit to the farmers of East Hastings. We should like to see every farmer in Tyendinaga and Thurlow become a member. Why should not the directors of this society cheerfully take in hand the formation of a Farmers' Institute in the East Riding? During the winter frequent meetings might be held by such an institute in different parts of the riding and addresses given by leading agriculturists of the Province. If the directors of the Tyendinaga Society would move at once in the matter and secure the co-operation of the other societies in the riding, a flourishing institute would soon be established.

A Venerable Petitioner.

The Journal of Indianapolis, refers thus to a venerable abolitionist: "The last of the anti-slavery apostles, the venerable Parker Pillsbury, of Concord, N. H., is in the city, where he will remain until Friday morning. Mr. Pillsbury was eighty years old on the 22nd of September, and has remarkable freshness of color and smoothness of flesh for a person of so great age. His hair still has large patches of black, the locks are white, and his beard is no grayer than is usual in men of sixty. Mr. Pillsbury is a vegetarian, has not eaten meat of any kind for years, and in his vegetable diet does not eat potatoes, turnips nor any thing that is dug out of the ground—only those things that the sun has shown upon. He is in remarkably vigorous health, and his memory calls up from the past the great anti-slavery movement in which he was so prominent an actor."

Church of the Redeemer.

Next Sabbath evening Rev. R. J. Craig, M. A., will lecture in the Church of the Redeemer on "John Hens the Bahian Slave." The sermon of the Rev. Mr. Craig will be followed by the singing of the hymns. Supper was dispensed last Sabbath forenoon, and in the evening the pastor delivered an able and impressive sermon on "Things that cannot be shaken." The solo by Miss Deane at this service was well worthy of praise.

Post of Deseronto.

The collection of the United States for Deseronto for the quarter ending Sept. 30, 1890, was $153,981, made up as follows: barley $3,011; wheat $2,455; corn $1,017; flour $85; fish $109; hams $1,009; butter $1,484; lard $7,125; lumber $93,242; mouldings $1,708; pickets $174; personal effects $100; posts $9,135; shingles $110; strips $12,500; slats $338; and other $10,004; ties $12,909.

Painful Accident.

One day last week the daughter of Mr. Wilson Dufor, of Richmond, was left alone in the house, and during the absence of the family she obtained a rifle cartridge which she attempted to open. The cartridge exploded and she thrust her right hand into it, and entirely torn away, two of the fingers were blown off between the second and third joints and the other two fingers detached to the first joint. The little child, who is only eleven years of age, walked a mile and a half to have the lacerated hand attended to.

A Collision.

During the progress of the races at the Shannonville fair a horse driven at a rapid rate by Dennis Lake ran with great force against a team of horses owned by Mr. Snell & Belleville butcher. The shaft of the sulky struck one of the team in the shoulder indicating a serious wound. A horse was thrown by the force of the collision among a crowd of bystanders. It was fortunately caught before any more damage was done. Mr. Matthew Hill got a bad shaking up being among those against whom the animal rushed in its mad career.

Not too old to learn.

Wm. Dence, a Lowell N. Y. farmer, who had been tending milk to the factory, has failed and sold 225 cow calves at once and is now turning off a nice lot of gilt-edged butter. His profits from his dairy this year have more than quadrupled. The intelligent farmer, who knows the kind of farming does not pay will turn his attention in some other direction. Converting milk into veal, good, merchantable veal—will let up somewhat on the butter supply and prove a paying business also.—Dawson Times.

Deseronto Races.

The Deseronto Driving Park Association will hold their fall meeting on Friday, Oct. 18th. There will be three events: free-for-all, purse $50; stallion race, $50; and racing race, $30. Entries may be made with Mr. George Stewart, Deseronto House, on Saturday, Oct. 19th, at 10 o'clock on the day of the race; entrance fees ten per cent. of the purse. The track is now in good condition and will be further improved before the day of the meeting. Commencing after the Belleville races, it is probable that all the horses which take part there will be entered at Deseronto. Single fares on all the boats of the Deseronto Navigation Company on that day. Admission to the grounds 25 cents.

Breaking the Record.

It is only two weeks ago that we recorded the great record of the late department of the Big Mill of the Rathbun Company. That department had cut 108,900 pieces of lumber in six days, an average each of 101,500 pieces, the largest cut in one day being 109,000 pieces. Last week, ending Oct. 5th, this same department beat that great record by cutting in the six days the immense aggregate of 653,000 pieces, an average of 108,833 pieces each day, the largest cut in one day being 123,000 pieces. This is most remarkable work and has probably never been equaled elsewhere. Our friends congratulate Mr. M. C. Dunn, Mr. Fred Burr, and all the hands in this department of the Big Mill on this great feat.

Annual Report.

Remarkable Utterances.

Mr. G. R. Parkie, the sentimental and rushing New Brunswick orator, who went to Australia to see the people of that country in the name of Imperial Federation, is meeting with about as little success there as he did in Canada. In the New South Wales Legislature Sir Henry Parkie, premier of that colony, and Mr. Dibbs, leader of the opposition, said that Australia was on the high road to becoming a great independent power. The latter stated that he foresaw the time when Australia would be a great Republic "willing to be the ally of England."

Peter Court.

The Court arrested George Howard, a youth of fourteen years, on a charge of furnishing Indians with liquor. He was shut up in the lock-up for two or three days and then dismissed by Commissioner McCullough with a warning that if caught again in the same act he would be sent to the reformatory. This notice is applicable to all the boys guilty of the same offence. They will receive a sentence of two or three years in the Penitentiary Institution.

Seth Wheeler had James Lindsay summoned for ill using a horse lent to Butler Howard. Lindsay acknowledged the offence and was fined $20 and costs or 30 days

CHESSE.

BY J. ROYCE PANTON, M. A., PROFESSOR OF NATURAL HISTORY AND GEOLOGY, GUELPH.

Questions are repeatedly sent to the College asking for information concerning chesse. The answers to these sometimes extend to a great deal of work. Consequently I have thought it expedient to prepare a bulletin upon the subject and thus put the information at the disposal of those who are interested. It is to appear as a bulletin to those interested in any way so much about this plant, when it is remembered that there are persons in various parts of the province who maintain that it is a modification of the wheat plant, brought about by winter killing of the wheat, it will not seem a matter of surprise that I should deem it expedient to write something about this apparently doubtful member of the grass family, endeavoring to show that it is a species (Dromius acedron) just as much as any other plant is, and that it does not depend for its existence upon a modification of wheat plants growing in adverse conditions. Much discussion has taken place regarding its origin in some other way than a plant perpetuated by its seed. As it usually appears among fall wheat that has been winter killed, it seems quite natural to suppose it is a degenerated condition of the wheat, and there are not a few fallow who insist upon this as being the only correct explanation of its presence under such circumstances. Thus it is that few questions at a Farmers' Institute will lead up to a more lively discussion than that which deals with the origin of chesse.

It is remarkable that, if this is the true origin of the plant, one cannot readily grow it from wheat, while there is no difficulty whatever in growing it from seeds of chesse. Those who sow wheat containing chesse never fail to get a good crop, while those who are very careful to sow clean seed are troubled with the weed.

The following are some reasons why a person should be ready to conclude that this plant is not excepted to others and depends for its perpetuation upon the seeds which it matures.

1. The plant is widely different from wheat in appearance; so much so that botanists place it in the genus Bromus, while wheat belongs to the genus Triticum. Gough (1810) and others who have been in the habit of sowing wheat, comes much nearer in its characters than chesse does, and yet no one ever hints that it is derived from wheat. If chesse is a degenerated condition of wheat, we might reasonably expect some resemblance to the plant from which it was derived.

2. The most developed evolutionist would not expect to see develop in the short space of a few months, owing to the effect of frost, a plant so unlike in structure, form and habit to that which it is derived. It is only through long periods of time that such modifications in plants take place as to change its character so much that it may be viewed as a new species. But in this case one season brings about such a remarkable change that the plant is ranked in another genus—a more comprehensive term than species.

3. If chesse were sown it yields chesse. If it were degenerated, wheat and sown under favorable surroundings, it should soon return to wheat; for we observe both in animal and plant life that a degenerated form will return to its proper nature when conditions are suitable for growth. Some have gone so far as to say chesse will not grow from seed, but this is a mistake, as can easily be seen by sowing some of the seed.

4. Chesse will mature seed under adverse conditions, though the plant is only two or three inches high; while if sown under favorable conditions it grows three or four feet high before seed is matured. This may account for its never being seen in good crops, while it may be seedling in some places where it is suitable time, when the crop in which it is sown is injured by frost; then this hardy annual (the seeds of wheat possess great vitality) is ready to take the vacant soil and yield a crop no longer hid from the farmer's eye.

The conclusions arrived at by all men who make plant life a special study are, (a) that chesse is a typical plant, producing seed yearly, which gives rise to plants of the same character; (b) that a seed of wheat sown as chesse is so sown as to produce chesse, and (c) that chesse cannot produce wheat under the most favorable conditions for growth.

6. In instances where parts of a plant, apparently a combination of chesse and wheat, were so mixed as to seem but one plant, close examination proved them to be parts of separate plants, and that the apparent union was not real. In some cases microscopic examination has been required to prove it.

7. Wheat has been grown in some places and often winter-killed and no chesse has appeared. There are places where chesse is unknown, and wheat is sown there through all the vicissitudes which seem favorable to the development of this weed in other parts where the wheat is sown. Farmers carefully in using clean seed often have winter-killed wheat unaccompanied by chesse.

8. Liberal rewards have been offered by agricultural societies to any one who could prove conclusively that chesse is derived from wheat, and as yet no successful person has appeared, though as high as $500 was the prize.

With these facts before us, it does seem difficult for a person to accept a theory which demands greater concessions than the most sweeping form of evolution. Though this plant may appear under circumstances difficult to explain, we are forced to believe that its origin is carefully considered it will not require one to pin his faith to a view antagonistic to the teachings of science as required to be accepted by persons claiming wheat as its source.

President Elliot teaches his former independent allies one important lesson. It is his influence to bear upon national politics to connect with one or more of the two main parties. Third-party movements invariably involve a part in their avowed from one to the other are despised by both, and are incapable of exerting any positive influence in the direction of good.

READING THROUGH AN ENVELOPE.

Not the least puzzling among the tricks performed by so-called public mind-readers or clairvoyants is that of reading something that has been written and sealed up in an envelope. The deception is a very simple one, and is disclosed by the Cleveland Plain Dealer as follows:

The performer, standing on the stage, asks several persons in the audience to write each a sentence on a slip of paper, and seal it in an envelope and hand it to the performer. One of the audience is a confederate and writes a sentence agreed upon beforehand. When the assistant goes back to the house, gathering up the envelopes the confederate's contribution is carefully put where it will be the last one of the lot to be taken up. The performer picks out an envelope and after feeling it, with much ceremony pronounces the sentence agreed upon and the confederate in the audience acknowledges the truth of it. To confirm this the performer tears open the envelope and repeats the sentence as written on the envelope, and the audience, which is in reality another man's sentence, which he reads, and then, picking up another envelope he has just read. The one who wrote it says it is right; the performer bears up the envelope, reads what is in it and proceeds in that way through the lot.

THE SMEAD SYSTEM.

The Daily Herald of St. Joseph, Mo., thus describes the Smead System of ventilation as exemplified in an eight room school building in that city. This system will be used in the new Deseronto High School, which circulates through the building first enters the basement through open windows into the fresh air room. This room is required to be kept scrupulously clean, as all the air that circulates through the school house first passes through it. This air then passes through a filter in the brick walls which surround the furnace into a chamber above the furnace. It is here heated and passes on through shafts to the rooms above. In each room a number of small ventilators are placed in the board above the floor and the air, as it becomes cooled and fouled, sinks and passes out these openings. With the fire in the furnace, but just started up, a calculation is made from an anemometer test, which showed the air to be moving in at a rate which would furnish an entirely fresh supply every eight minutes. From the foul air ventilators the air passes down into the foul air chambers and passes under the furnace, completely drying the dampness, and it then passes out of the building immediately through the vent shaft. The passage of the air through the building is so continuous and so rapid that the air of the so-called foul air chamber keeps seemingly pure.

The current from all surrounding parts is directly toward the vault chamber, whether from the seats above or from the foul air chamber on the side. A constant current in these directions out of the vent line is kept up, and air in the building is not tainted from them in the slightest. One of the tests made to show the rapidity with which the air is changed is by pouring a few drops of penicillin on the floor of the fresh air room. In two and one-half minutes it had circulated throughout the building and had returned to the foul air room.

In the summer time when it is not desired to use the furnaces, the air passes directly from the fresh air chamber to the rooms. Such artificial aid to circulation as is needed is furnished by a fan built under the vent shaft. This keeps up the movement of the atmosphere as well as is done by building a fire under the entire furnace. So far this has been the only fire needed.

In each room the regulation of the current is under direct and easy control of the teacher. Warm and cold air both enter by the same shaft and the regulation of either by the teacher in no way depends or interferes with the current in other rooms. In the Young building there are four furnaces, but two to be used at a time, excepting in extremely cold weather.

This school building seems well constructed, well lighted and well adapted to its purpose. It cost $22,000 and was apparatus for heating and ventilation cost $2,500. The cost of the building was about $1,000 less than the estimated cost by the architect. The board feels pleased that it has secured a good facility as it has for the money expended.

Net Yearly Profits, - - - 78.67.	Yearly Cash Profits, - - - $21.14.
Leaves Net Yearly Payment to Policyholder, - - - $109.30.	Net Yearly Payment to Policyholder, - - - 7.27.
In 1850, a gentleman living not 100 miles from Montreal, took out this Policy on the ordinary Life plan, applying his profits to the permanent reduction of his premiums. The profits had gradually reduced the annual premium until it had diminished in 1875 to $13.87.	EXAMPLE III.
In 1885—payment of Premiums had altogether ceased.	And one more, five years later still, in 1860.
Not only this, but he was thenceforward in receipt of an annual income from the profits of $35.20.	Policy 3088—$3,000. Premium, $108.90.
In 1885 this income was increased to $109.30 per annum (as above), and in 1890 this will be again largely increased, the income growing at every division of profits until the Policy becomes a claim.	1885.
	Yearly Cash Profits, - - - $127.52.
	Net Yearly Payment to Policyholder, - - - 17.62.
	N. B.—In this case a portion of the profits was taken in anticipation. Had this not been done, the net income would have been increased by..... $8.52.
	Raising the net surplus income to..... $27.14.

MEMO.—In the cases above quoted, as in all others where the profits are taken and are paid annually to the holder, until the Policy becomes a claim.

LOCAL ITEMS.

It has been demonstrated that sixty good hours are as profitable as two milk cows.

The Rathbun Company have been shipping large quantities of railway ties from their Campbellford mill.

The Bell telephone poles in Pembroke, we may remind our town country, have been painted a sort of pea green color.

As Adam remarked to Eve as they sat outside the garden gate: "We've had an unusually early fall, have we not?"

The newspaper men of Eastern Ontario meet at Carleton Place to-day for the purpose of organizing a press association.

Mr. W. C. B. Rathbun, of Bay View Ranch, has purchased a handsome pair of black horses from Mr. Wm. Burnip, paying a goodly sum therefor.

Mr. John White, ex-M. P., in an interview at Winnipeg, says nineteen-twentieths of the Orangemen of the dominion support the educational platform of the Manitoba government.

The Bishop of Ontario has appointed the deacons who were ordained last week to the following charges: Rev. A. E. Gray to Combermere; Rev. Mr. Norris to Palmerston; and Rev. S. Hayne to Navan.

Archbishop Cleary will be installed next month when he will be presented with $10,000 to be used in the erection of a chapel in rear of the cathedral. The money will be raised by the clergy and the people of the diocese.

A horse weighing 3000 pounds, twenty and one half hands high, and seven feet eleven inches in girth, has been on exhibition in Portland, Oregon. He is a Clydesdale, five years old, and is described as absolutely perfect in proportion.

We have received from the publishers a copy of the Christian Guardian. The Guardian is ably edited and contains a large amount of religious and general information. Every schooling family should subscribe for this great religious weekly, if they desire to keep posted on the great operations of their church.

Mr. James R. Booth had a close call the other day. While passing along near the track at the corner of the General Office of the Rathbun Company, he was struck and hurled to one side by a Bay of Quinte Railway engine. His arm and ankle were crushed, but otherwise he fortunately escaped without serious injury.

Catharine McLaughlin, an inmate of the Regiopolis asylum, Kingston, jumped from one of the windows of the asylum, on Monday morning, and killed herself. There must have been criminal negligence somewhere or the windows would have been so protected that such a thing would have been impossible.

More Charcoal Kilns.

Mr. Jas. R. Booth has secured the contract for the erection of two additional charcoal kilns at the Chemical Works. They will be 30 ft. in diameter and each will require 35,000 brick in its construction.

An Entertaining Journal.

The Napanee Beaver published a supplement last week. It was well illustrated and contained interesting biographical and business sketches. The Beaver must be complimented on its enterprise which cannot but prove remunerative.

The Only Way.

The Ontario states that Belleville was troubling with farmers and other selling apples and potatoes in bags less than the law requires. The health inspector took up the matter and bringing a case into the police court soon effected a remedy. Who will apply the remedy in Deseronto?

Exorbitant Railway Fares.

The new railroad law has gone into effect in Michigan and only two cents per mile can be charged for carrying passengers. Railway fares are exorbitant in all parts of Canada. The people have most generous subsidies the different railways of the country. The railways have not appreciated their kindness. As they own our parliament there is but little hope of any legislation similar to that of Michigan.

For Our Steep Town Council.

The Canadian Pacific Railway Company are painting the street telegraph poles at Annapolis in accordance with the request of the council. The Times urged our town council to demand similar action on the part of the telegraph companies who have spoiled the appearance of our streets by planting unsightly poles thereupon. But our council appears to have a fear of corporations and have, therefore, as usual done nothing.

Belleville Jail.

Prison Inspector Christie says Hastings county goal has the toughest class of prisoners he finds. There is one awaiting trial for murder, one for perjury, seven for larceny, one for aggravated assault, one for house breaking, one for carrying concealed weapons, and five for larceny. The County of Hastings is becoming notorious for its increasing number of criminal cases. To what may we attribute this sad state of affairs. Much of it is due, no doubt, to negligence on the part of parents who appear too generally to exercise no control over their boys and girls.

A Curious Discovery.

Saturday last while excavating Gilmour's part of the flume the workmen unearthed a natural well in the old rock 3 ft 10 in. by 3 ft 3 in. and between 4 and 5 feet deep. Over the well was a shell of rock and it was filled with gravel and pebbles similar to those found on the lake shore, which bore evidence of the action of the water as well as the sides of the well which were smooth and free from the usual roughness. As the gravel was taken out, it filled up with water which appeared to be different from the water in the river although only a few feet away.—Trenton Courier.

Killed at Napanee.

The White states that last Saturday night a young man named Russell Topf, belonging to Collingwood, attempted to board a freight train at Napanee and was thrown under the wheels of the car. Both legs were broken and severed from the body. He was killed and his death was a great loss. He was about twenty-two years of age. His remains were taken to an undertaker's establishment and removed to his late home to-day. Topf, it seems, missed the train at the station and going to the Centre street crossing tried to jump on but the train going faster than he thought he could catch, he was killed. He attended the high school at Sydney, and was considered a bright student. He lived with his grandmother, Mrs. Graham, of Elizburgh.

DISTRICT ITEMS.

The stmr. Rothsley will be raised this fall.

Richard Palmer, an old resident of Steco, is dead.

The railroad bridge over the Moira is now completed.

The magic lantern season has set in at Belleville.

Smith's Falls wants its streets named and houses numbered.

It is proposed to extend the K. & P. Ry from Renfrew to Eganville.

Mr. Edward Merrill has been gazetted county judge of Prince Edward.

Belleville votes on the bonus to the Rolling Mill Company on the 20th of November.

Carleton Place is leaving its rival towns behind: its population is 4,495, while that of Pembroke is 4,252.

About two tons of frogs' legs have been shipped from Hastings to New York during the past four months.

Rev. W. H. Barnes, of Barrie, has been called to the charge of the Reformed Episcopal Church in Belleville.

The editor of the Belleville Ontario is eating an ear of corn fifteen inches in length and nine inches in circumference.

Albert College has been presented with a huge fungus. It weighs thirty-three pounds and was taken from a tree near Flinton.

St. John's church, Brockville, was entered on Sunday and the box which contained the collection was broken open. This is the second time this year that the box has been broken into. On Monday night the Roman Catholic church was also entered and the collections abstracted.

ONE OF OUR GREAT SPECIALTIES IS

DRESS GOODS!

In this department we are showing a very complete range comprising the very latest novelties, all in good standard and reliable makes.

Bordered Dress Goods are the latest craze. We may say we were a season in advance of the trade here in showing our elegant range of Bordered Goods for the spring trade. For fall trade our stock is simply magnificent. We are selling—not only showing, but selling, and selling freely, a line of Bordered Dress Goods at 65 cents per yard, which customers tell us other houses are asking $1 for. We offer better ranges of these goods, up to $1.50 per yard. Lovely Goods.

One of the members of our firm visited the wholesale markets this week, and secured some of the most beautiful and stylish Dress Goods at less than 50 CENTS ON THE DOLLAR.

We offer a line of All Wool Dress Goods in black and all the new colorings at 20c, which are cheap at 30c. We are offering a line of black and white large plaids, all wool Dress Goods, double fold, at 40c, worth $1 per yard.

We are offering a line of Amazon Cloths, extra wide double-fold goods at 50c, which you cannot buy elsewhere less than 75c to 90c.

We show a line of Pattern Dress Goods, containing 10 yards, fine French double-width Goods at $5, worth $10, a better line at $6, worth $12.

N. B.—These two lines retail in Toronto at $10 and $12 each. Every yard of above at prices quoted is like buying dollar bills for 50 cents. A customer came to us the other day and said she paid $18 in town for a Robe, the very same as we are selling at $6. The very best evidence possible that our prices are way under the trade. Besides these special lines we are showing an immense range of Cashmeres, Henriettas, Foulas, Amazon Cloths, Plaids, Stripes and Fancy Goods of every kind, quality and make, at very low prices.

MOURNING DRESS GOODS

Is another great specialty with us. We do honestly believe we have sold more Mourning Dress Goods during the last year than any other three houses in Napanee, simply because we carry a very complete assortment of the finest and best makes of French, German and English Cashmere, Henriettas and Parachutes in Silk and Wool Wools, and are cutting the prices down to the quick in each and every case. Another advantage in buying your Dress Goods from us is that you can by this means have them made up on the premises by Miss Sanderson, whose reputation as a thoroughly first-class Dressmaker is second to none in this section of Ontario.

Her charges are very moderate and her work beautifully finished and its guaranteed. Our general stock of Dry Goods and furnishings throughout is equally as complete as the one line mentioned, but space will not permit our going into details.

The Millinery Season

is on us and we are ready with the finest and most elegant stock of Millinery we have ever shown. Mrs. Doxsee has selected her stock with the greatest care. Our trimmers have also visited the wholesale openings and are posted as to the latest and most correct styles. Our large staff of first-class assistants are already driven to death on orders. Everybody comes direct to Mrs. Doxsee for fine Millinery. Our stock is now very full and complete, and is by far the grandest we have ever shown. Leave your orders early with us before the big rush commences.
